

Green Building and Development: Building Analyst Professional Certification

Daytona State College has teamed up with Institute of Envelope Science to help you position yourself to be on the leading edge of the energy efficiency/green movement by being certified to provide Home Performance Testing.

Learn the fundamentals of how a residential building works as a system and how to use the latest building science technology to help solve heating, cooling and air leakage problems. This course will teach how to evaluate the energy performance, comfort and safety of a house through a comprehensive, whole-house diagnostic procedure.